HUGE ARMY DIRIGIBLE AIRSHIP BATTLES WITH ELECTRIC STORM

Reached New York After Being Lost For Two Hours in a Fog But Storm Prevented Landing and the Ship Returned to Aberdeen Grounds After 13 1/2 Hours in the Air.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Aboard the C-2, Aberdeen Proving Grounds, Md., July 28.—The giant army dirigible C-2 landed here at 6:30 o'clock this morning after a 13-hour battle throughout the night with an electrical storm over New York city and after being lost for two hours in the dense fog that wrapped the North Atlantic coast.

New York city, for which the dirigible headed, lay sheathed in an impenetrable fog. The city was in nowise discernible. The mighty roar of the dirigible's engines as it blindly sailed over the tip of the Battery brought into play a huge searchlight which catching the dirigible in its fierce light saved the C-2 from an imminent crash into the Whitehall Building at the foot of Manhattan. The great shaft of light suddenly swung from the dirigible to the building and the commander of the dirigible sent his craft upward with a crackling of gears and a jerk that sent its seven passengers of their feet.

Rising to a height of 6,000 feet, the dirigible left the skyscrapers of lower New York only to find itself under a starless sky and enveloped in fog. Hesitating to descend again to determine his whereabouts, lest in descending he might again come in collision with tall structures of lower New York, Captain William Kepner sailed out over the fog draped area for several miles.

Descending again finally the ship came suddenly upon Coney Island. Dropping still further in an effort to discern the elevated tracks as a possible guide line through the darkness, the dirigible managed to trail a speeding elevated train for a mile or two.

A sharp command from Captain Kepner and the dirigible made a fierce upward lunge at a steep bank to the left. It had missed a tall smokestack by barely 20 feet.

Refusing to be discouraged, Captain Kepner drove the dirigible in what he believed to be the direction in which New York city lay. The fog fooled him. After sailing for twenty minutes at great speed the commander found he was far out over the ocean. He turned the dirigible's head toward Coney Island again, believing he could take his tack from that point. But a severe electrical storm of ferocious intensity broke upon the dirigible. Rocked by the winds that whistled through her stays the dirigible plowed on.

The commander ventured to drop to 400 feet in his grim determination to prove that a dirigible can master flying at night under odds. A single glaring light gave the crew courage. The light puzzled the commander but he headed for it. When within 400 yards of the striking light it proved to be the staine of liberty. The crew gathered new spirit and determined to ferret out Jersey City and sail over Boyle's arena where the Leonard-Tender light-weight championship bout was in progress.

But there was no way in which the crew could determine Jersey City in the insistent maze of lights below them.

The electrical storm increased and literally drove the dirigible before it in the battle to "conquer" Jersey City. The commander then headed the craft for Forty Second street and Broadway. Halfway towards that point, Broadway itself being indiscernible, the commander consulted his watch and discovered that it was nearly one o'clock in the morning. He turned his ship homeward in the electrical storm and the fog continued its grip on the dirigible and sent it wandering through air lanes leading, the commander knew not where. His radio set failed him at this point. With his compass the commander guided the vessel south by southwest and at daybreak had finally negotiated Philadelphia.

The C-2 had left Bolling Field, Anacostia, at 5 o'clock yesterday evening. It stopped at Aberdeen for re-fueling, ascended immediately and remained in the air for 13 1/2 hours. The purpose of the flight was to train pilots for night flying. The C-2 is scheduled to make the trans-continental trip in September which was to have been made by the ill-fated Roma. The crew that manned the C-2 was Captain William E. Kepner; First Lieutenant Ernest S. Noon and Sergeant A. D. Albrecht. In addition to the crew the dirigible carried four other passengers, representatives of three press associations and a photographer.

The following have been appointed by the executive committee as workers: Chairman, E. R. Alford, Dr. W. J. Cranston, Morris Safford, Ward B. Everett, Carl Preston, Dr. Mark O'Meara, Schuyler C. New York, July 28.—"Irish" Meusel, New York Giant outfielder, banged out his tenth homer of the season in the fourth inning of the game with St. Louis today. Doak was picking for the Cardinals.

JEWELL DENIES STRIKERS' RETURN

Denies Any Intent by Union to Run The Railroad Shops and Urges That Strike Continue.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
New York, July 28.—Claims of railroads that many striking shopmen have returned to work and that service has improved were denied in a telegram sent by the central strike committee of the New York metropolitan district today to B. M. Jewell, leader of the striking shopmen, who is now in Washington.

The telegram, which was dispatched following a meeting of the committee at the Continental Hotel, said: "Statements emanating from railroad offices in this district relative to the number of strikers who have returned to work and improvement in service are absolutely unreliable. There are over 1,000 more men out now than on July 1. Less than one per cent of those who walked out originally have returned and transportation is as seriously disarranged as it has been at any time since the strike began."

"We are in a position to fight and win if the eastern executives will not negotiate. The shopmen in the metropolitan district have backed from the start, however, the patient efforts to negotiate a settlement. We shall continue to do so in spite of the attempts of railroad executives in this district to settle the issue in their own way—by the force of their economic and financial power."

"Last night John G. Walber, spokesman for the eastern executives, stated publicly that the issue in the strike was not grievances on the part of the men but whether the railroads or unions were to run the shops. This is a fair sample of the point of view of the small group of New York executives headed by General Atterbury of the Pennsylvania railroad, who are holding up a settlement."

"The unions in this district, as you know, have never even desired to run the railroad shops. The shopcraft workers have stood, as is the right and duty of American workmen, for collective bargaining in matters of wage and working conditions."

"General Atterbury and his clique are now playing for a victory by annihilation—annihilation of the other party to the dispute and collective bargaining as well. We know, however, that this policy represents only a small minority of the executives of the country. We have reason to believe that even in this district there is some dissent."

"It is inconceivable that the Atterbury clique can long set themselves against public opinion, the government and a majority of their fellow executives."

"We urge you to continue your efforts for a national settlement by peaceful negotiation. We urge you, however, under no circumstances to allow a settlement which will permit such roads as the Pennsylvania, the New York Central and the Erie to make headway in their unionism and bona fide collective bargaining."

EARTHQUAKE CAUSES ALARM

By Telegram to The Freeman.
London, July 28.—Earthquake shocks over a period of two days in southwestern Europe, partly fulfilling the recent prophecy of Dr. Milton A. Noble, a Philadelphia geologist, are causing widespread alarm, according to advices received here today.

According to Dr. Noble's prediction the earth tremors were to begin Thursday. Shocks were reported from southern France followed by others from southern Spain today.

Negro Murderer Captured.
By Telegram to The Freeman.
Norfolk, Va., July 28.—Jim Chambers, negro slayer of C. E. Freeman and H. H. Fisher, prohibition agents attached to the local agency, who were killed here early Sunday morning, was captured early today in a thicket near this city and his body riddled with bullets. The night-long vigil of more than a hundred city police and Federal operatives around a copse of woods was rewarded when the negro was seen to emerge from an open field.

Local Strike Situation Unchanged.
The strike situation in the Lister and Delaware shops remains practically the same. Rumors that ten of the men working at the shops had stopped work were denied at the offices of the company today. On the other hand it was stated that more men are being employed and that the positions of the strikers were gradually being filled.

LEWIS SAYS MINERS STAND PAT

Settlement Will Originate in Bituminous Rather Than Anthracite Field—Joint Conference Will Not Mean Return to Work.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Philadelphia, July 28.—Any settlement of the mine strike will originate in the bituminous field rather than in the anthracite. This is the essence of a statement made today by John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, this morning.

Refreshed by a long night's sleep, Mr. Lewis appeared more optimistic than ever as he sauntered about puffing meditatively on a huge cigar. "A call for a joint interstate conference," he said, "will be issued but I mean that the miners will go back to work pending negotiations. We stand absolutely upon the status quo and have not altered our position a single bit."

"Tomorrow Frank Farrington, president of the Illinois miners, will be here. I have held over my other district leaders in order to confer with him."

"If the operators refuse to attend a joint conference, we shall continue as at present. I believe that settlement will be made with the bituminous operators, however, and that this will be before the anthracite operators will negotiate."

"A conference will be held if a majority of tonnage is assured, but when the call will go out, I cannot say."

First a settlement with no reduction in wages will probably be reached by the bituminous operators, Lewis said.

The anthracite group will come into the fold on practically the same terms.

That a request that coal be mined for the use of state and municipal institutions in Michigan will meet with refusal was indicated by Mr. Lewis shortly before going into conference with Carl Young, labor commissioner of that state, and P. J. Ward, a deputy, who arrived here today.

"The miners have made known their attitude on this two or three times before," Mr. Lewis said, smiling. From other union leaders it was learned that the reason for the miners' refusal is that if the institutions were supplied a principle of apathy on the part of civic authorities toward speedy settlement of the strike would be made manifest.

At the Montour No. 4 mine of the Pittsburgh Coal Company, one of the largest mines in this section and the first to heed President Harding's demand for reopening, work was stopped when less than one hundred tons of coal were brought to the surface. Another attempt will be made to open the mine today. Company officials are aiding the strike breakers to man the mine.

DE VALERA ON WAY TO UNITED STATES

By Telegram to The Freeman.
New York, July 28.—There is a "well defined rumor" in circulation in New York, according to a report published here today, that Eamon de Valera has left Ireland secretly and is on his way to the United States. In Irish circles the report is that he had escaped from Ireland where his republican forces are being hard pressed by Free State troops, and is coming here to seek financial and moral support for the republican cause.

Insurance Losses Settled.
Some people labor under the impression that the insurance companies are compelled to pay insurance claims only a few times, and that these times are far between. However this is not the case as is shown by the fact that during the past week Pardee's insurance agency has settled the following claims, all of which have been met promptly and settled to the entire satisfaction of the parties interested by the Liverpool & London & Globe Insurance Company: Fire losses of Charles J. Spalt, 138 and 140 Newkirk avenue; Catherine Ahlers, Hone street; Staples Brick Company, Port Ewen.

Brooklyn Club Protest Denied.
By Telegram to The Freeman.
New York, July 28.—In a decision made public today, John A. Heydler, president of the National League, denied the dual protest of the Brooklyn club on games played with New York July 4 and St. Louis July 10. In both cases Brooklyn claimed a runner had been prevented from scoring by being illegally blocked off at the plate.

SLIDE BLOCKS W. S. RAILROAD

All of the trains on the West Shore railroad from New York city northward were delayed several hours this morning by the blocking of the tracks at Red Bank, below Cornwall, by a slide. At the railroad offices here it was stated that it was not expected that trains would resume running much before noon.

In order to bring the passengers through it is necessary for them to walk around the slide.

Among the trains delayed was the New York paper train which reaches Kingston early in the morning.

EMBARGO ON ALL BUT COAL AND FOOD

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Norfolk, Va., July 28.—The Norfolk and Western railroad has declared an embargo on all freight except coal and foodstuffs, effective immediately, it was learned here today.

This action was taken under provisions of the Interstate Commerce Commission order to give priority to movement of coal on railroads engaged largely in that class of traffic. The embargo is expected to seriously affect export shipments, from this port.

This is the first serious blow directed at export shipping since the rail strike began July 1. The Norfolk and Western is extensively involved in the transportation of export freight aside from coal.

FIELD DAY SATURDAY AT RHINEBECK; LOCAL HORSES

American Legion Plans Big Event That Day.

The American Legion of Washington Hollow will hold a big field day Saturday afternoon at the Springbrook Driving Park at Rhinebeck. The program is baseball and horse racing.

Four of Kingston's horsemen will have horses entered in the running races. Harry Walker's Starlight, Kinney, Dr. Mahon's King Bob, Elmer Felen's Jester and W. D. Brimmer's A. S. A., have been stabled at the Springbrook stables all summer, and will participate in the day's sports.

It is expected that a number from this city will attend the outing that afternoon.

MC ENTREE MOVES INSURANCE OFFICE TO FERRY STREET

The McEntree insurance agency in the First National Bank building was moved today to No. 28 Ferry street where it will be continued as usual. The reason for the removal of the business was due to the fact that the First National Bank is planning to enlarge its facilities and will use the stores formerly occupied by the insurance agency and Marks Jacobs, the merchant tailor, who is now located on the second floor of the bank building.

Jail Break Frustrated.
An elaborately planned break from the Dutchess county jail, Poughkeepsie, was frustrated on Wednesday when Homer Flagler, jailer, tipped off at the last minute, found a package of eight hacksaw blades concealed in the mattress in the cell occupied by Peter Tomaselli of Beacon. In a confession later Tomaselli implicated John Muscollo and his wife of Poughkeepsie. Muscollo and Tomaselli are being held for the grand jury. The plan was exposed late Wednesday afternoon when the Poughkeepsie police department traced a sale of hacksaw blades from the C. D. Johnson hardware store, in that city, to the county jail.

BUFFALO MAY HAVE GENERAL STRIKE

Central Labor Council Reported To Have Recommended City-Wide Strike in Sympathy With Railroad Men.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Buffalo, July 28.—The central labor council of Buffalo at an early morning executive session is reported to have reached an agreement to recommend a city-wide strike in sympathy with the striking street car and railroad shopmen. It is understood a committee on the action under advisement.

The head of the International Railway Company has declined to appear before the mayor's board of inquiry to place the blame for the strike and the possibilities are he and others, who assume a similar attitude, will be subpoenaed.

Fifteen more cars were put into operation today but the patronage has picked up but little. Night cars continue to draw attacks. State troopers dispersed a big crowd on one line, but no arrests were made. A small boy, standing in the crowd, fired a shotgun at a passing car. The policeman on the car grabbed him, but when he said it was a blank and no damage could be found he was released. Beyond that there was little evidence of violence.

BROOKLYN BRIDGE SPAN WEAKENED

By Telegram to The Freeman.
New York, July 28.—Grover A. Whalen, commissioner of plants and structures, in a letter to Mayor Hylan today announced his intention of recommending a special meeting of the board of estimate at an early date to consider the question of rebuilding Brooklyn Bridge and the construction of another bridge between Manhattan and Brooklyn. At the same time the revelation was made that one of the great cables supporting Brooklyn Bridge had stretched, weakening a span. This explained way all but horse drawn vehicles were recently barred from the traffic runways.

Commissioner Whalen said that municipal engineers have pronounced the bridge absolutely safe at the present time, but strongly recommends against overburdening the structure in the future.

Brooklyn Bridge will be forty years old in 1923. During the space of its existence it has carried a burden for which it was never intended.

Trolley and elevated railway traffic over Brooklyn Bridge is being continued in its normal volume.

MILTON PLACE AGAIN RAIDED BY PROHIBITION OFFICERS

Federal prohibition enforcement agents Thursday morning raided the establishment of Harry Stieckles in Milton. The raiding party included officers from the Albany branch of the enforcement bureau. It is said they obtained two bottles of champagne, 18 quart bottles of whiskey, one dozen bottles of gin, five gallons of sherry, three gallons of gin and a quantity of "hoech." It was the second place which had been made on Stieckles' place. The owner of the place was summoned to appear before a United States commissioner.

Astors Going Strong.

The Astor Club of Rhinebeck defeated the Schatz team of Poughkeepsie Wednesday on the former's diamond. The little village boasts of a speedy team this season. The Rhinebeck team are on even terms with the Colonials, the Schatz, and are leading the Parker Axle Regulators of Poughkeepsie.

RAIL EXECUTIVES MEET TUESDAY TO CONSIDER HARDING PROPOSALS

No Hint Given as to the Character of the Plan Advocated by the President—Union Heads Profess to Feel Jubilant Over the Prospect of Winning.

"SENIORITY" AS LABORER SEES IT

Member Of Local Railroad Brotherhood Gives His Views in Answer To New York Central Advertisement.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
New York, July 28.—Tuesday, at 11 a. m., at the New Haven board room, Grand Central, was named as the test hour of the great rail strike by rail officials today.

At that hour 148 of the leading railway executives of the nation will meet to hear from the lips of T. DeWitt Cuyler, chairman of the Association of Railway Executives, the proposals of President Harding for ending the strike.

On the telephone orders from Cuyler, who is in Washington, Robert S. Binkerd, assistant chairman of the association, put a corps of assistants at work at noon today telephoning railway presidents in all parts of the country.

Confirmatory telegrams were dispatched simultaneously.

Both carried a bare announcement of the meeting and Binkerd declared to International News Service that no faking of the proposals to be considered would be issued even to the rail chiefs, in advance of the session.

At the defense headquarters in the railway labor war today there was an air of optimism. "We have the strike beaten," Binkerd declared. "Rail conditions are improving every day."

"If the strike is settled on the basis of the proposals which Mr. Cuyler will present to the executives, it will mean an improvement in the general business outlook. The public, however, should not expect too rapid an adjustment."

"It should be recognized that the nation's business cannot be handicapped by two such great strikes as the rail and coal strikes and rebound immediately the strikes are ended."

The veil of silence which, by tacit agreement has descended upon the railway world will not be broken, according to Binkerd, until the Tuesday meeting is ended and its decision for peace or war has been promulgated. As regards the probable duration of the fateful conference, none would make so much as a guess, but it is known that arrangements have been made for moving the entire railroad body to the Yale Club for luncheon early in the afternoon.

The entire question, according to a statement from the headquarters of the eastern railroads, has now been taken out of the hands of division chiefs of the three railway executives' associations and now rests with the supreme body, the association of all the nation's railway directors.

There was still evident in eastern railway circles today, however, a doubt as to whether the president's intervention would be a "cure."

How The Master Driver Became Master Tire Builder

IN 1903, driving the "999" racing car, Barney Oldfield started his career of victories that later earned him the title of "Master Driver of The World." To overcome the tire weaknesses that made racing difficult and dangerous, he studied tires—specified materials—supervised construction.

American tires that have ever taken first place in the French Grand Prix. They have won for three consecutive years in the 500-mile Indianapolis Sweepstakes. So far in 1922, Oldfields have lowered four World's Records and seven track records.

Today, Barney Oldfield is known as the "Master Tire Builder." Starting with the crude tires which carried the "999" one mile in sixty seconds, Oldfield gradually developed his famous Cords—a set of which covered 500 miles at eighty-eight miles an hour without a change.

In three years Oldfield tires have won every important race on American speedways. They are the only

The Wichita Test Run gave evidence of Oldfield superiority in touring—when a set of four Cords covered 34,525 miles over rutted, frozen, winter roads—a performance attested by the Mayor of Wichita.

See your dealer and get a set of these rugged tires that Barney Oldfield has developed and perfected through a lifetime of practical tire experience. Their performance will convince you that they are "The Most Trustworthy Tires Built."

Sneezing Once Presaged Death.
In the ancient world sneezing was the subject of much superstition, and was almost always endowed with sinister import. Jewish folklore has it that in the first ages of the world sneezing was always a presage of death until the coming of Jacob. That astute patriarch, anxious lest he himself should perish from such an insignificant cause, besought the Almighty to endow sneezing with more beneficent attributes, and since then it has been lucky to sneeze between noon and midnight.

The Olive Tree.
The olive tree is supposed to have been originally a native of Greece, but it is now naturalized in the south of France, Italy and Spain, where it has been extensively cultivated from time immemorial for the oil expressed from the fruit. The tree attains an almost incredible age. Near Ferra, in the vale of Marmora, is a plantation about two miles in extent of very old trees, supposed to be the same trees mentioned by Pliny as growing there in the first century of the Christian era.

Language.
Quickest way to make an all-round American out of a new arrival is to teach him to talk our language. In this field, naturalized aliens can perform a powerful service for the country they have adopted—or, which has adopted them. If you want to split hairs, Government announces that the last census showed 1,488,048 in our country, ten years older, unable to speak English. The other 80 per cent of our foreign-born population speak English—often better than the native born.

LENGTHENING LIFE.

The New York State Charities Aid Association has just published figures showing that, although somebody dies every four minutes, the average individual is stronger and lives longer than formerly, and that the "lifetime of the race" is lengthening. "We have a long distance to travel before we get back to Methuselah," but we are on the way," jubilates the commenting New York Times, and goes on to say:

The estimate for our own country as a whole is that there has been an extension of four years in the life of the average citizen in the last eleven years. The statistics for Massachusetts and New York come with a cheering message, for they show that the average "expectation of life" has been increased by many years. In Massachusetts it is shown that the expectation of life has increased from 35.5 years in 1780 to 55.2 years in 1921. In New York City, which has some of the salubrious attributes of a health resort, the death rate has been practically cut in two in a quarter of a century. It is not beyond reasonable hope that it will be possible eventually to stamp out utterly the preventable diseases.

This is all very well and highly desirable in its way. It is a perfectly proper social object to lengthen life by the improvement of material conditions and the prevention of disease. But from the point of view of the philosopher and the ethical teacher it is vastly more important to improve its quality than to lengthen life. Obviously a shorter life well spent is worth incalculably more both to the individual and to the race than a longer life ill spent.

The discussion of a new national anthem has taken a note of the claim of the Germans that the music of "America" was written in Germany in 1793, the claim of the Danes that the Germans took it from a hymn composed in their country in 1790, and the claim of the English that the music was first used in 1740 with the words of "God Save Great George the King." Strangely enough there is no mention of the often published French claim that the same music was sung in honor of Louis XIV, who died in 1715, the metrical lines beginning, "Grand Dieu, sauvez le roi." The French claim to this much-borrowed air has at least the support of the most ancient dates.

The Newport News Shipbuilding Company reports that it is negotiating to construct two 1,000-foot passenger liners, dependent upon the passage of the merchant marine bill. The news is but an indication of the vast field of enterprise that will be opened up to American industry when that bill becomes a law. Not only will American ship yards build the largest ships and more of them, but American ship operators will be able to keep the vessels in continuous and profitable commission. American manufacturers will be encouraged to seek greater foreign markets, knowing that they have a dependable merchant marine to carry their goods at reasonable rates.

The Democratic primaries in Texas have called attention to the enormous size of a state whose 253 counties include as great a territory as Pennsylvania, New York, Delaware, Maryland, Massachusetts, New Jersey, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois combined. When the big state really fills up with voters there may be developments enabling us better to understand why Massachusetts threatened to quit the Union if Texas was admitted.

Every week witnesses the absorption by the people of huge new issues of bonds. They are of all sorts—foreign, railroad, industrial, public utility, and municipal—and all find a ready market. The purchases of new bonds average $10,000,000 a day. Evidently the country is highly prosperous, despite the efforts of some classes of our citizens to stem the rising tide of business.

Leading financiers of Great Britain are at work on a plan for liquidating the British debt to the United States. Just what arrangements will finally be made is yet undecided, but it is apparent that no further efforts will be made to secure a compromise of the obligation. Great Britain realizes that her world prestige will be tremendously enhanced if she pays the United States in full without any bickering whatever.

The nation that sent two million soldiers to Europe to regulate predatory Germany is not likely to let itself starve because of a railroad strike or to let itself freeze because of a stubborn refusal to come to terms on the part of the opposing coal mine forces.

Now that the Hague conference has followed Genoa in failure, will European nations quit fooling and get down to sensible efforts to restore peace conditions?

What do you want to know about Nature Subjects? Send any questions of general interest to the Nature Notes Department of this paper, enclosing self-addressed and stamped envelope for reply.

Can You Answer These Questions?

1. How can I tell all the different kinds of "sparrows"?
2. What fishes will light mosquito larvae?
3. Please tell me how to exterminate elder-bugs? They are medium large brown bugs with red bellies, have wings, fly during warm months, and crawl all over the windows in winter. We have box-elder trees in the yard.

Answers in Tomorrow's Nature Notes.

Answers To Previous Questions.

1. Can any of the carnivorous and moil climb trees?

Yes, members of the family Mustelidae do, as ferrets and weasels, and particularly martens, which are largely arboreal in habit. These animals rob birds' nests. The small spotted prairie skunk climbs small trees, and we might count in raccoons, as they being omnivorous, eat meat also.

2. I read your statement that the hummingbird moth works at night, and would like to say my experience is that it works by day, especially on phlox.

The confusion here is what our correspondent, and what we mean by "hummingbird moth"—not a strictly scientific name, of course. Our correspondent refers probably to Hemaris thysbe, a clear-wing, which does fly by day. We had in mind a typical sphinx-moth, not a clear-wing, but a hawk-moth, with velvety wings. They are observed often on warm summer evenings, on petunias, and similar sweet blooms.

3. What is the biggest bird of prey we have?

The largest one in North America is the California condor, or California vulture, Gymnogyps californianus, that at one time ranged the

LAWRENCEVILLE HAS

WAR OVER A CESSPOOL

The sheriff's office was notified this morning that the assistance of the sheriff was needed at Lawrenceville near Rosendale. Night Jailor Jocelyn responded and found that there was trouble at one of the boarding houses where some of the neighbors were creating a disturbance and threatening the people in the house. However when the sheriff's men arrived everything quieted down and there was nothing for them to do. The trouble seems to have been the outcome of an argument over the emptying of a cesspool which took place a day or two ago when it is said the cesspool was pumped out in the street. The objectors took the law into their hands, after being advised by Deputy Sheriff Huben as to the proper course, with the result that the keeper of the boarding house had to seek the help of the sheriff.

Further action is expected and new developments may be had in a few days.

SCHOOL MONEY $219,369 MORE

Figures showing the increased appropriations by the state for education have been prepared by the state comptroller.

This county received for school purposes under Governor Smith in 1920 $105,331.98 and under Governor Miller in 1922 $208,188.86 an increase of $102,856.88.

The county received $221,544.51 for school purposes in 1921 a total increase in the two years of $219,369.31.

The total state appropriation for school purposes in 1920 was $11,987,620.21, in 1921 $13,406,960.45, and in 1922 $34,202,595.66 the largest in the history of the state.

In spite of this increased expenditure in other departments enabled the administration to reduce the direct state tax levied on this county in 1922 by $66,240.95 as compared with 1920.

The liberal appropriations for school purposes by the present state administration have served to improve the rural schools and increase the salaries of teachers throughout the state.

CENTENARIANS SOON TO BE COMMONPLACE.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

London, July 28.—Centenarians will be common place in the next generation, for the children of today are far better and finer than the children of pre-war days, according to Dr. Henry Dwight Chapin, American child specialist, whose work is attracting considerable attention in London.

"I don't see why every ordinary person should not live to be a centenarian," Dr. Chapin said. "If we give babies the right start, hundredth birthday in the next generation will not be the sensation they are today."

"Scientists have discovered that the lower animals live five times the period it takes for their bones to develop. It takes human beings twenty years for full bone growth, and on this natural basis the average healthy life should be about 100 years."

"The reason so few people live a century is principally because of the social environment of the first five years of their lives. Those are the most important years."

"Hereditarily is blamed for a good deal, but I believe the first five years of social environment make a stronger determining factor than heredity."

"During the early plastic stages the brain is registering every tone and temper around it."

"The subconscious mind is at work and will probably break out in the conscious mind in later years."

"The cultivation of calmness and efficiency in children will do much to prolong the life of the human race," Dr. Chapin believes.

"It isn't work that kills," the doctor said. "It is worry."

"Not one-half of our reserved energy is used by the greatest workers. There is no such thing as physical overwork."

CHARGES AGAINST CITY MANAGER NOT SUSTAINED

Newburgh's Common Council censures Mr. Wall.

The charge that City Manager McKay of Newburgh had agreed to accept a $6,000 bribe if the purchase of the Ramsdell site for a high school in that city had been "put over" at the recent taxpayers election have been proven groundless, and the common council, who held a hearing in the matter, adopted a resolution unanimously requesting Mr. McKay to return to his duties and censuring Peter Wall, who lodged the charge which caused the city manager to suspend himself until the charges had been investigated.

Peter Wall had given Mrs. Mary Buchanan of Colden street as the authority for the charge he had made against the city manager, and she under oath at the hearing held Thursday morning said the only foundation she had for the charge was a statement made by a young woman, whose identity is unknown to her, on a date she couldn't give, in front of her home on Colden street.

After the hearing Mrs. Buchanan, exploding with wrath at having been summoned to testify before the council was led from the city hall uttering incoherent criticisms of the city administration, mixed with religious metaphors, predicting the vengeance of the Almighty on those who had caused her discomfort.

Policeman Edward Lehenan, to whom had been assigned the unpleasant task of escorting her left her on the sidewalk and she wended her way homeward still taking volubly.

BOSTON MAN WILL SWIM ACROSS ENGLISH CHANNEL

Chief End of Brains.

A well-known politician tells this one to himself. A barber while trimming his locks, remarked: "You have a large head, sir (sup. snip). It's a fine thing to have a large head, for a large head means a large brain, and a large brain is the most useful thing a man can have, for it nourishes the roots of the hair."—Boston Transcript.

In Memoriam.
Bishop, Frances: In constant memory of my beloved wife who fell asleep one year ago today, July 23, 1921.
Surrounded by friends I am, lone-some,
Mid pleasures I always feel blue;
Your face is ever before me,
And I am always thinking of one,
Who,
In sacred sleep so gently lies,
I will not say she is dead,
A pure girl never dies.

Strange Birds in Belgian Congo.
Strange birds make their habitat in the Belgian Congo, in the dense forest and high grass region of Central Africa. The hornbill, for instance, makes a curious nest. The female lays her eggs in a hollow tree. The hole is filled up with mud, leaving an aperture, too small to allow the female to get out, but through which the male supplies food while the eggs are hatching. Weaver birds weave their nests out of strips of grass or leaves, and, through the entrance to the nest is from below, it is so constructed that the eggs never roll out. A variety of birds called grass warblers sew their nests of grass between leaves or weeds in the same manner.

He Would Like to Know.
An official of the village improvement society in New Jersey tells of a note received from a Japanese of an inquiring turn of mind. The subject of the inquiry is one that is familiar to most parts of the world, but no doubt the community of which it was made felt flattered by this evidence of its popularity. The note read: "The honorable society are asked in what way do they rid themselves of him the much troublesome mosquito? How do they approach him in his house among the reeds and marshes, so as to remove him effectually from the dangers that he does to people of good minds whose skins he must puncture? All this I would like so much to know."

Ancient Yucatan Relics.
At Chichen-Itza, in Yucatan, where there is a sacred sinking well, all sorts of beautiful sacrifices have been found embedded in the mud. Jade necklaces, gold plates and small jars heavily studded with jade, sometimes containing human hearts, have been found in this well, says the Detroit News. The Maya Indians made these sacrifices when they wanted rain or a blessing for their crops. Beautiful gold knives that were undoubtedly used to carve up the victims of sacrifice, usually young women, have also been found. The Maya Indians of northern Yucatan probably use the same language as the builders of the ruins among which they live, says Prof. A. M. Tozzer, of Harvard university.

BOY SCOUTS

(Conducted by National Council of the Boy Scouts of America.)

NATIONAL SCOUT COUNCIL

The national council of the Boy Scouts of America held its twelfth annual meeting at Chicago, March 29 and 30. At this gathering were assembled the national leaders of scouting from all over the country to hear the reports of the past year's work and formulate plans and policies for the year to come. Every state in the Union was represented at this assemblage which is the big event of the year for the organization. The report of the chief scout executive was particularly interesting in that it summed up the outstanding events of the biggest year in the history of the movement, biggest not only in numbers but in remarkable progress and achievement. National Scout Commissioner Daniel Carter Beard reported for the National Council of Honor, of which he is chairman, telling something of the heroic work done by scouts in life-saving. Other strikingly interesting reports were those of L. L. McDonald, director of the department of camping, and Lorne W. Barclay, director of the department of education, which is specifically charged with the development of helpful relationship between scouting and churches and schools, a work which has made great strides during the past year.

Resolutions were adopted during the sessions conveying greetings to scouts of other nations and expressing appreciation of the generous co-operation of the American Legion, Rotary, Kiwanis and other national organizations in promoting scouting.

Resolutions of appreciation were also passed in recognition of the splendid gratuitous service of scoutmasters and other volunteer leaders and of the faithful work done by the heads of departments and others at the national council headquarters in New York city.

Letters and telegrams of congratulation and greeting were received from President Harding, from cabinet members and from governors of a large number of states as well as from Rotary and Kiwanis clubs, the National Catholic Welfare council, the Federal Council of Churches and other organizations. These messages were read at the "Twelfth Birthday Dinner" at which Walter W. Head of Omaha was toastmaster and music was furnished by a Boy Scout orchestra of Chicago.

NEED NO GRUB OR TENTS

Scouts of New York City will be able soon to go on a week's hike without the trouble of carrying grub or shelter tents. This is the plan of Chief Gordon, and it is now being actively carried out by two members of Troop 208, Bronx, who are building and marking White Bear Trail. This is a trail being laid out at the Kanawake camps, encircling the country about them. Its total length will be more than forty level miles, that is, miles as measured on a map. The hills and valleys will probably make this distance 25 to 30 per cent more. To cover the whole trail will require a hike of five and a half days. In providing for accommodations at night, it is Chief Gordon's plan to establish a series of five camps at one-day intervals on the way.

SCOUTS GET RED CROSS MEDALS

Scouts William Johnson of Spokane, Wash., and Wray Farmin of Sandpoint, Idaho, who recently received gold medals from the National Court of Honor for their heroic service in saving the lives of three women from drowning last summer, have also been honored with the first prize offered by the life saving department of the American Red Cross "for exceptional meritorious action in saving lives and rendering first aid to the injured during the year 1921." Both boys have been scouts since they were twelve years old. Both are Eagles and have qualified as American Red Cross life savers.

BUILD BRIDGE WITHOUT NAILS

During the scouting carnival given in the city auditorium at Omaha, Neb., boy scouts roused the interest of spectators by building a 54-foot bridge without nails, which was strong enough to bear the weight of an automobile. Six different groups of boys, each demonstrating a different scouting activity, were in action at the same time.

DOINGS OF SCOUTS

Butte, Mont., troops have been receiving a course of instruction in first aid from the United States Bureau of mines, safety rescue car No. 11, in charge of H. E. Gallison, United States safety officer.

Logan, Utah, troops were proud hosts during anniversary week to Governor Charles R. Mabey, who took the oath which made him a regular Tenderfoot. The Governor announced his intention of going to camp with the boys next summer.

RUINS of ANGKOR

Stairway of the Central Tower, Angkor Wat.

(Prepared by the National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.)
Rivalling in inaccessibility our cliff dwellings in the Southwest, but guarding by tropical verdure rather than by desert sands, France has tucked away in the dense forests of Indo-China, some of the most extensive and most magnificent ruins in the world. They are the great temples and other buildings of the Khmers, a race about which little is now known, though inscriptions abound and await the work of some clever decipherer.

Outside of the Siamese and Cambodians, very few people have heard of Angkor, or know that such a nation, as the Khmers ever lived, conquered, worked, and perished from the face of the earth. In America even now it is doubtful if there are many who have heard of Angkor Tom and Angkor Wat, so completely have these splendid ruins been hidden in the Cambodian jungle and kept from civilization by natural barriers.

Up to recent years not many travelers ever visited Angkor, and some of those who did never returned to tell the story, for the country has been from time immemorial inhospitable to strangers. It is said that the Romans sent an envoy in the time of its greatest activity. The Chinese have from time to time sent envoys and made treaties, and have left the earliest descriptions so far discovered and deciphered. Marco Polo mentioned the place, but did not see it.

Journey Up the Mekong.
One visiting Indo-China naturally goes first to Saigon, capital and chief port, and it is from there that the journey to the forest-enclosed ruins will begin. A railroad journey of 44 miles takes the traveler to the end of the line at Mytho. From this point the journey is up the broad Mekong river by steambot for the next 24 hours; and you are not sorry when it is ended, either, for the accommodations are anything but luxurious.

The Mekong is one of the world's greatest streams; it is the one great river of the peninsula of Indo-China. A sheet of yellow water a mile or so wide, fringed with coconut and arica palms; some banyans, bananas, and a tangle of liana vines; an occasional bird or two, a native sampan, a Chinese junk; patches of rice and acres of swamp land; no hills in sight to relieve the monotony—such is the vista of the first day's journey which lands you at Phnom Penh, the modern capital of Cambodia.

An attractive little place is Phnom Penh, with well-paved streets—it takes the French to make roads and keep them good—a gentle monsoon to cool the air; a few characteristic buildings of the Cambodian royalty, suggesting a general flavor of mild decay; a pagoda with a silver-plated floor and an absent-minded looking Buddha made out of glass, attended by a priestess clad in gold and glittering with diamonds; a "library" without a book in it; a procession of Buddhist priests in bright yellow robes; natives in bright-colored silks and cottons and, above all, the "Phnom" itself, a structure erected as a monument and possessing some lines of beauty that more than atone for its grotesque features.

At Phnom Penh one may go by water, by a tributary of the Mekong, or he may rely on a good French-built road to Kompong Cham on the shores of the queer lake, Tonle Sap. This body of water is a natural overflow basin for the Mekong. In the rainy season it becomes 60 feet deep in some places, but during the dry period it is little more than a sea of mud.

A launch takes one across the 70-mile-long lake, though this modern craft cannot come close to shore and must be boarded and left by sampan. One transfers to his sampan apparently far out in the lake, a distant line of trees marking what he supposes is the shore. But the discovery is made before long that the line of trees is not the shore but the edge of a submerged forest.

Grandeur of the Ruins.
The first glimpse one gets of the ruins is when a rounded tower appears through the trees a mile or so distant. Just a moment, and then no more till you are there. It is Angkor Wat, the most recent, the best preserved, the most classic and ornate of them all, though not the largest. There are many others scattered about this wide plain, including Angkor Tom, only a mile away; but these are all ruins, indeed, while the "wat" might still be called a building.

Standing in front of the temple grounds (the word wat means a temple), you see a most some 30 rods wide surrounding the premises like a medieval castle. And crossed by a stone causeway leading to the main entrance. This entrance is itself a massive tower, flanked by two others only a little smaller, set in the enclosing wall. The whole inclosure is 800 by 1,000 meters, and its area is therefore 176 acres. Passing through the entrance, you see the elevated stone causeway, flanked by several temples, leading up to the wat in the distance.

At a distance you get the effect of lateral magnitude only, for the entire structure or group of structures is sitting flat on a level plain, unassuming and almost unimposing. It is not a little surprising to look at the central tower and hear that it is actually 65 meters (213 feet) from its summit to the level of the plain.

It is not till one enters the galleries and begins to measure distances relatively therefrom that the grandeur and impressiveness of the conception begin to make themselves felt. Those same rounded towers now spring aloft, and the inner temple is raised above a surrounding gallery, which is in turn terraced above an outer and surrounding gallery, till the roof of the latter is on a level with the base of the former. These two encompassing galleries and the cruciform temple building proper within them are the main details in the ground plan of the wat.

The material used throughout in the construction is a grayish sandstone which the French call "grès." It much resembles marble in closeness and fineness of grain, and it stands weathering admirably. Where portions of the decorative detail had been affectionately caressed and stroked by admiring hands, the stone is as smooth as polished marble. The effect of the color is certainly as somber as could be conceived, and to see it in ruins is painfully suggestive of the grayness of death.

Covered With Carvings.
And all of these tons upon tons of stone were brought from Phnom Coulen, nearly 19 miles away. How, overland? Impossible. If that submerged forest could tell its own history we should probably hear of a time when both Phnom Coulen and Angkor were situated upon the margin of Tonle Sap and the stone barges went to and fro between them. But that triumphant forest, having driven back the sea, has made a malarial marsh near the ruins which is simply one of its weapons of offense.

If the mass of the structure is impressive, the amount of decorative work done upon it to speak only quantitatively, is still more so. Inside and outside, from top to bottom, it is a mass of carving in stone. A few blank spaces are to be found about the building, and these are generally in the main temple, reserved for the work of the greater artists who never came. Both the encircling galleries consist of a row of square columns on the outer side, an arch on corbelled above, and an inner wall with an entablature for the whole colonnade. And everything is decorated—the four flat faces of the columns, the walls, the entablature, and the wooden ceiling which formerly rested upon it, concealing the arch which is unornamented.

Who built these ruins, and when did they build them?

The Khmers built them; but who they were, where they came from, when and why they built, and finally, why they disappeared, nobody is yet able to answer with certainty. Tradition in the person of an alleged Chinese historian says that a powerful ruler once emigrated from India with all his followers to escape a still more powerful ruler; that he subjugated the people he found here and put them to work erecting these enormous edifices of stone. At present the safest guess as to the date of building is as follows:

For Angkor Tom, the Ninth century A. D., or during the reign of Alfred the Great in England. For Angkor Wat, the Twelfth century, or 100 years after the Norman conquest.

Pauline's Promotions

Pauline had never worked before. She came to her position fresh from the high school.

She was a bright, intelligent girl and interested in her work. She learned quickly and her first promotion came soon.

But she found the long hours and routine of the office pretty wearing. She went out to lunch too tired to eat and by the end of the afternoon she often felt faint and dizzy. Super did not appeal to her, so she did not eat enough and went to bed early to stay awake tossing until late in the night. Her father wanted her to see a doctor, but Pauline insisted she was all right.

One night her mother made her drink a glass of Uric Acid. She made her reluctantly drink it, so she ate a fine dinner. She drank another glass before she went to bed and slept like a top.

Now that she drinks it regularly her health and ambition have returned. Its vitamins and rich cereal content have built up her under-nourished system and put her back into her blood.

Order a case at once from your grocer. If he don't carry Uric Acid, phone 1066 or 1401-R. Kramer & Sigel, 70 Chambers street, Rondout, local distributors.

Stranger's Attempt to Eat Near East Wienie Was Funny.

Proprietor's Wife Showed Him How to Dissect Delicacy, Which Is Assembled on Iron Skewer.

Strong men wept trying to keep from laughing. Some did not try to restrain themselves, but laughed out loud, a long, rumbling, throaty, Levantine laugh. The proprietor jumped down from his perch behind the cash register of a Turkish cafe in Rector street, the New York Sun states. Together with the head waiter he started toward the table in the corner.

On his face was a look of horror. As he went forward he waved his hand trying to quiet those who laughed. Hearing the noise, the proprietor's wife came in, saw what was the matter, and came forward also, snatching up a knife and fork as she hurried.

One man, a stranger in the quarter, was seated at a table. He looked up, wondered what was the matter and continued to eat. The three surrounded his table.

"Non—non—non—non! Monsieur make a mistake!"

"Egskuse please—et can be taken off for eating!"

So spoke the proprietor and the head waiter. The woman said nothing, but seized the American by the wrist and took the food from his hand. Laying it on a plate she slashed it deftly with the knife she carried, and the astonished diner and said: "See—so!"

Now that the stranger understood what the consternation was all about, he laughed with the rest. For it was all on account of a Near East wienie, which he had started to eat in the natural American fashion. And Near East wienies are different things from the ordinary "dog wagon" and delicatessen variety.

In the first place they are regarded highly as a dinner dish. They are served in the place of the roast, after soup sprinkled with the everlasting mint flavor and an entree that seems always to be a thick, highly flavored and hearty mixture of eggplant or okra and meat.

Instead of being stuffed into a casing, these Syrian wienies are assembled around a long iron skewer, with the metal ends extended so that they can be laid over an open charcoal fire and roasted evenly. When broiled they are superior to "hot dogs," being entirely of minced lamb. Some call them Turkish hamburger, but this is a misnomer.

They come to the table with the foundation iron still in place. It keeps the meat hot, and the ends extend like those fussy silver clips that are sometimes spilled into the ends of an ear of green corn. By these convenient handles had the stranger picked up his first wienie, attacking it in a combination "hot dog" and green corn fashion.

This was the reason the diners laughed or tried to keep from laughing. For his enlightenment did the proprietor leave his cash register unguarded! To show him how to dissect out the iron skewer did the proprietor's wife rush forward with a knife and a fork. Thinking he had been remiss in not showing the guest what to do and how to do it in the case of the wienies, the head waiter stood in the background and looked worried.

As for the guest, he wasn't bothered at all. Willing to oblige, he slashed the second and the third, extracting the iron core as directed, and went right on eating wienies.

Music in Anesthesia.

It is reported that Redard of Geneva, Switzerland, successfully employs music to soothe and tranquillize the dreams of persons who have taken ether or chloroform in order to undergo surgical operations.

The music is begun as soon as the anesthetic begins to take effect, and is continued until the patient awakes. It is said that not only does this treatment prevent the hysterical effects sometimes witnessed, but that the patient, on recovering, feels no nausea or illness. Redard also uses blue light to produce anesthesia. The light from a sixteen-candle-power electric lamp, furnished with a blue bulb, is concentrated upon the patient's eyes, but the head and the lamp are enveloped in a blue veil to shut off extraneous light. Insensibility is produced in two or three minutes.

English Rural Fire Fighters.

It was a sleepy village and its fire brigade was anything but up-to-date.

One night a fire was announced by the violent ringing of the alarm bell, and the sleepy brigade arrived at the scene of action to find the building wreathed in curling black smoke.

No flames were visible from the outside.

The captain of the brigade made a careful survey, and then calmly lit his pipe.

"We'd better leave it alone and let it burn up a bit," he said, "then we'll be able to see what we are doing."—London Te-Bits.

World's Water Power.

The total available horsepower in the world derivable from falling water is reckoned at 439,080,000. Africa leads with 180,000,000. Asia has 71,000,000. Europe is credited with 45,000,000. South America with 54,000,000 and North America with 62,000,000.

GOLD ISLAND SIFTED MANY TIMES IN VAIN

Expedition Headed for Shores Where Hundreds Have Searched Without Success.

The five Americans who steamed out of New York harbor recently for "an obscure island off Nova Scotia" to search for buried treasure are believed at Halifax to be headed for Oak Island, in Mahone bay, legendary hiding place of $10,000,000.

Old settlers in Nova Scotia have seen many another party squander its time and fortune looking for the gold which the lore of the land says is hidden on the island. A dozen companies or more have tried their luck at the search and credulous folk of New England and Nova Scotia have poured $1,000,000 into the tills of treasure-seeking expeditions. The promoters of these companies waxed prosperous, but no one ever heard of a dividend going to the stockholders.

It is not recorded when the first hunt for the treasure began, but early legends concerning the searches are thought by some to have inspired Edgar Allan Poe to write "The Gold Bug."

Twenty years ago an expedition used hundreds of men and horses and great machines digging into the sands at Oak Island. Nothing came of their labors. An old sea captain was the resident manager of the company and hope sprang eternal in his breast. Undaunted by failure, he leased the island and bided his time, waiting for some capitalists seeking vicarious thrills from the work of hired searchers, to put up money for another gold hunt.

Not long ago some Chicago people became interested. Their big idea was to freeze the quicksands reputed to guard the treasure.

FIVE MILLION STAMPS LOST

Curious Error Leads to Condemnation of Egyptian Issue.

A curious slip in the formation of a single Arabic character has led to the condemnation of an entire printing of 5,000,000 Egyptian postage stamps of the 15 millimes denomination, reports Douglas B. Armstrong in the London Daily Express.

The word "millimes," itself being feminine, requires a masculine number to precede it, but the English engraver inadvertently rendered both the number and the word in the feminine. The mistake was not discovered until the stamps reached Egypt, when they were withheld from circulation until a new plate could be prepared with corrected inscription.

Instructions have been given that those wrongly inscribed are to be used up on official dockets and post office papers that will eventually be destroyed, without getting into the hands of privileged individuals, and for these high prices are being sought.

Tagging All the Bases.

The Giants maundered a squad of Cardinal pitchers for the third day in succession, winning 12 to 7 and further strengthening their league leadership. In the series to date the Giants have scored 31 runs. Stock kept the Cardinals in the hunt with successive homers in the first and third inning, scoring 6 runs.

Nixon's single broke up a 10-inning nuisance between the Braves and the Cubs, the latter finishing second, 8 to 7. Ford obliged with five hits and his fielding sparkled throughout.

The Yankees drew up to within a half game of the lead by taking the Browns again, Schang's homer producing the winning run in the eleventh. Pitchers came and went with the monotony of Tenneyson's brook, Danforth being tossed out for an alleged attempt to doctor the ball.

The greatly astonished Phillies made it three straight over the Reds when they came from behind with a six-run rally in the seventh to win, 6 to 5.

Facing a one-run deficit going into the final half of the tenth the White Sox laid coarse hands upon the deliveries of Karr and Piercy and pulled out a 4 to 3 victory.

The Athletics finished away in front of the Indians by hammering Coveleskie with enthusiasm 11 to 2.

Zachary had the Tigers stopped from the outset and the Senators went out to win in a slow jog, 9 to 1.

WHAT FIGHTERS SAID TODAY

By Benny Leonard:

Tendler is a better man than I thought he was. It took me six or eight rounds to figure him out and to tie up his left hand. I opened up then but I must say that Lew is game and can "take it." I was in good shape and that's why Tendler's body attack did not tire me. I guess he was rather discouraged when those lefts to the stomach did not fold me up. I believe I would have finished him in another round or two as he was tiring fast and his defense was breaking down rapidly. I still think I can knock him out.

By Lew Tendler:

Leonard is still champion but he's only human and I hope to get another crack at the title this winter. I learned a lot about him that will help me in another fight. I must say he stood up well under body punishment. I know I hurt him in the early rounds. Next time I will know how to fight him from the beginning, while I am still fresh, and I believe I can stop him in a few rounds. I think nobody will dispute that I tied up his left hand. Leonard is clever at holding and for that reason I did not do as well as I expected.

RESUME AURIESVILLE PILGRIMAGES AFTER STRIKE

Should the strike on the railroad be terminated at an early date the pilgrimages to Auriesville to "Our Lady's Shrine" will be resumed.

When the Rev. M. J. Mass was said on the grounds and the pilgrims received Communion. Breakfast or lunch for those who took it with them was the next move and hot coffee and cakes were served on the grounds. About three o'clock in the afternoon the stations of the Cross in the open air with pilgrims from different cities and towns in procession ending at a mound surmounted by a large crucifix called Calvary.

Benediction followed and the start for home was begun at 5 p. m., arriving at Kingston, 8 p. m. The shrine is in charge of the Jesuit Fathers who own twenty acres of land sacred to the memory of Father Jogues and Reid Couplé, Jesuits who were murdered by the Huron Indians. The trip is about two and one half hours from Kingston and the fare for the round trip only two dollars and a half.

"RAISER" TURK'S WINNING CATCH

Now Fast Left Fielder of Galluppers Acquired His Nickname—Mother's Recipe Proves Good for Bread or Baseball—Another Tale of Mountain League.

It's a queer thing, but some one is always discovering something new in the eating line, and one of the latest is the fact that the human body requires a certain amount of vitamins in order to function properly. "Have you had your vitamins today?" is just an ordinary question among food sharks, but in the days before such a thing as vitamins was known among the laymen there was a famous game staged between the Galluppers and the Busters in the Mountain League.

Larry Turk was considered one of the best left fielders in the league. That was one of the reasons he was playing with the Galluppers. In the days before the game in question Turk was familiarly known among his friends as Larry, but after the game and ever since he has been known as "Raiser," and how he acquired the nickname is the tale to be unfolded.

Larry was one of the food sharks, and would have acquired fame in these days. He was always figuring out some new menu to keep his body functioning properly as he termed it. In these days in the mountains they did not have the means to obtain yeast as in these more modern days and every housewife in the mountains had her own pet recipe for manufacturing yeast for home use.

Larry's ma was one of the afore-said housewives, and she had a real nifty recipe for turning out the yeast that raised the family bread. What put it in Larry's head that a yeast diet would prove beneficial is not known, but he had acquired the habit.

The day of the big game he had stuffed several pellets of homemade yeast in his pockets as he was bound to have his daily vitamins even if he did not call 'em by that name.

As usual the game was a hum-dinger. First the Galluppers led and then the Busters, but up to the ninth frame the Galluppers had managed to shove one run across the platter.

TOKIO STARTS FIGHT TO DECREASE PRICES

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Tokio, July 28.—The city of Tokio has entered the field actively to lessen the burdens of high prices for the poor people. Like food and clothing and other things the rents in Tokio continue unreasonably high; in many cases, higher than at any time during the war boom.

It is in this way that the city hopes to give the greatest help to the laboring people. Two large rooming houses already have been constructed in the slum districts. Each will house about 200 persons, and the price is only five sen (about 2½ cents) a night. Food also is served at cost at these places. In nearly every ward the city has also established municipal markets, where rice, fish and the vegetables and pickles that form a part of the Japanese meal may be purchased cheaper than elsewhere.

The city bath houses, however, have made the greatest hit with the people; a reasonable price for the daily bath appears to be more appreciated than cheap food.

Bits of Information.

The phrase, "a feather in his cap," originated in an old custom in Hungary, which forbade any one to wear a feather in his cap unless he had killed a Turk.

and led by a score of 2 to 1. The Galluppers came in for their half of the famous ninth but went down in one, two, three order before the slants of Captain Twin Gormley of the Busters who was tossing them over in top form that day.

Then the Busters came in for their half of the frame, but the first two men fell before the curves of Captain Ralph Roodboy of the Galluppers and then up stepped Captain Gormley with his trusty stick.

The first ball offered by Roodboy was met by Gormley and as the bat and ball met it looked like a home run clout as it was sailing high in the air headed for the left field fence.

The Galluppers rooters groaned as they saw that Larry would be unable to field the hit, and then gasped in amazement for Larry with great presence of mind stuck his hand into his pocket and seizing several pellets of homemade yeast swallowed them and was raised rapidly in the air meeting the ball in his glove as it was about to drop over the fence.

It was one of the most marvelous catches ever seen on the diamond and it won the game for the Galluppers as it scored the third out for the busters.

Ever since that time Larry is better known among his friends as "Raiser."

CHURCH CHIMES GROW IN FAVOR

New Bells at Washington Play
"Star Spangled Banner."

MEMORIAL TO LATE RECTOR

Only Three Other Sets of Bells in Country Can Equal Feat of Playing
National Anthem—Bells Are Played From Instrument Very Much Like an Organ Console—Chime Player Must Be Alone so He May Concentrate on Work.

The music of the bells is gaining favor in this country. Another church in Washington has just installed a chime of bells, and the city for blocks around leans out of its windows or stands on the street every evening listening to the concerts.

Under favorable conditions, that is on a clear day with traffic at a minimum, the bells can be heard for three miles, so that people who are not radio fans get music regularly from the air anyway.

The distinctive feature of this new chime is that it can play "The Star Spangled Banner," a feat which only three other sets of chimes in the country can equal. Patriotic Americans who have recklessly tried to reproduce this piece with their vocal chords will remember that the patriotic air runs the gamut of the best part of two octaves. Most sets of chimes have eleven bells. This set was to have fourteen, including several half tones, but a fifteenth bell was added expressly so that the unofficial national anthem might be played.

Memorial to Late Rector.
The new chimes belong to the Church of the Epiphany, and are a memorial to the late rector, Dr. Han-dolph McKim. As the church is the center of Washington's downtown shopping district the music of the chimes reaches large audiences, especially when programs are given at noon.

Such music is rather a novelty for most American cities. A good many churches that have a peal of bells rarely play them, and still more rarely give programs of any length.

Few people who hear the tunes played by the Epiphany chimes have any idea of how the bells are rung.
Some wonder whether the ringer pulls on a series of ropes, or whether he goes from one bell to another striking each with a hammer, somewhat as a xylophone player strikes his notes.
Considering that the largest of these bells weighs more than two tons and is five feet in diameter, and some of the others are very little smaller, these methods would be obviously impracticable. No player, however agile, could play a tune by leaping from bell to bell, sounding each with the proper stroke.

How Chimes Are Played.
Instead, the bells are played from an instrument very much like an organ console. The instrument is near the top of the bell tower. To reach it the player climbs the tower by ladders fastened to the walls.

The console is the only article of furniture in the little tower room, for the bellringer wants nothing to distract him. He must concentrate entirely on the business of getting clear tones from the bells. The chime player of Epiphany says that when he is playing he cannot have anyone else in the tower with him. No matter how quiet a companion might be, the player would be conscious of another presence and at a moment when his attention was divided he might strike the wrong bell.

"And if you do that," the player added, "it is certainly sounding your mistake from the house-tops." There is nothing, he explained, to cover up the false note; no harmony of sound as on the piano. The melody is carried by the bells, one note at a time as on a violin or horn, except that the significance of each note is even more striking in bell music. In a chime rendition the reverberating, clear-cut tones of the bells make every note of the piece stand out in pitiless relief—pitiless that is, if you make a mistake.

Operator Gets Brisk Work.
The bells are struck by an elaborate arrangement. The wooden console has a row of levers, one for each bell.
These levers are attached to a row of leather-covered wooden rods which rise above the console and are in turn connected with the bell clappers in the story above by a system of chains running over pulleys.

To strike a bell the player presses the proper lever down firmly about eight or ten inches. Producing this sort of music is good exercise as it requires steady use of the arm muscles, and incidentally of a good many other muscles in the body. However, considering that six of the fifteen bells weigh more than 1,200 pounds, the exertion required to ring them by levers is slight.

The bells in the story above the console are arranged in a square of two tiers. With the network of chains they fill the entire loft. They are so heavy that the church tower had to be considerably strengthened to hold them safely. The whole set weighs 18,500 pounds.

The largest of these bells weighs 4,300 pounds and from this, the lowest note in the scale, the bells grade off lighter until the bell with the highest note weighs only 225 pounds. This is not a record-breaking light weight for a musical bell. In a four-octave carillon, such as may be heard in Belgium, the highest-toned bell sometimes weighs as little as eighteen pounds.

Long Popular in Europe.
Though bells are coming into popularity in this country, for war memorials and in church steeples, chimes and chime players have not yet been given the recognition here that Europe has accorded them. For more than four centuries the bells have held a high place in the life of towns of Europe, especially in Belgium and Holland. Many of the larger cities in this part of Europe have carillons, containing several octaves and attuned to the chromatic scale. Some towns have as many as forty-five or fifty bells in carillon sets of bells.

How popular they are in these countries may be seen from the estimate that there are about one-hundred carillons in Holland and almost as many in Belgium. During the war some of the Belgium sets were wrecked by German troops and valuable old bells were melted down to make ammunition. This was a cause of great indignation among the Belgians who look upon their bells as treasured possessions.

Regular Concerts Given.
The player of the chimes abroad has always been a figure of local importance and a musician of distinction. Often he holds office from the city officials. Every day or at set times he gives the townsfolk a concert of old melodies, hymns, folk songs, even classical selections, through the round, scourous notes of the bells.

William G. Rice, an authority on the carillons of Europe, says in his book on the subject that the bells in some towers have been played for a hundred years or more on fixed days and at the same hour. When the bell master in one Dutch town obtained permission to play at an unaccustomed hour for the benefit of Mr.
Rice, the inhabitants of the town were so startled by hearing the bells at the unusual time of day that the newspapers had to explain the situation at great length.

How firmly rooted a tradition chime playing is in these countries is shown by the requirements of a carillon player in 1587, as described by Four-
din. He says that even at this time the carillon was already perfectly organized at Nivelles. The player took charge of the bells and sang in the choir "as much as possible." In return for these services he drew a salary of 200 French pounds and six measures of wheat, besides what he could earn from playing at weddings and special services.

Required to Teach an Orphan.
An interesting demand on this carillonneur was that he must teach his art to some child from the orphan house, designated by the magistrate. And the writer adds that the aldermen of this town exhibited still more their love of the bell music. "They established a carillon composed of seventeen little and greater bells, intended to provide for the musical instruction of the children, the future carillonneurs."

This was in the sixteenth century, and Belgium and Holland have never lost their interest in bell music. Some of their finest bells have been compared in artistic value to the volume of Cremona. Perhaps more than anything else such a comparison suggests the possibilities of the chimes.

WOMAN AND DAUGHTER SERVE ON SAME JURY

For the first time in the history of American courts a mother and daughter served on the same jury in a Cincinnati court. It was a murder case.
The picture shows Miss Imogene
Wright and her mother, Mrs. Fannie Bell Wright.

Mice Replace Chickens.
William Prentiss of Danville, Pa., has a hen that had been sitting for two weeks. Recently he discovered a litter of tiny mice in the nest. All the eggs were gone. The mice apparently were about a week old and the hen refused to return to the nest when they were removed.

Bringing Up Lambs on Bottle.
D. C. Burelson, proprietor of Hill Crest Farm, near Monroe, Mich., had to assist one of his ewes. She gave birth to four lambs and could feed but two of them, so he is bringing up the other two on a bottle. Twin lambs are not uncommon, but quadruplets are rare.

One Friend Didn't Bother Her.
Peggy used exceedingly bad English and was continually being corrected by her teacher, also her mother and aunt. One day after the usual "setto" she heard a sign and, putting her arms around her pet dog, said: "Oh Spot, ain't I glad you don't know grammar?"

But She Didn't Enjoy It.
With reference to the recent divorce suit in which the wife told the judge she married her husband so that she could enjoy his bathtub, a correspondent waggishly remarks that the husband seems to have kept her in hot water all right.—Boston Transcript.

Hupmobile Sales Keep Pace With Growing Knowledge of Values

It is interesting to note how closely the steadily ascending line of Hupmobile sales has followed the increase in general knowledge of,
and insistence upon, motor car value.

Ever since the public turned from loose spending to close buying, this Hupmobile sales line has shot upward with astounding rapidity.

This increase in demand for the Hupmobile, after more than a year and a half of steady acceleration, today shows no sign of diminishing.
Instead, the shattering of new sales records, both here and throughout the country, is a matter of monthly record.

The constantly growing demand for the Hupmobile goes straight back to the fact that the car is a remarkably good value for the price you pay, and a greater value in its saving in cost of upkeep and of operation.

The final saving, which the Hupmobile owner realizes because of his car's high re-sale value, is a further evidence of the soundness of the Hupmobile as an investment.

POULTRY NOTES

Put your eggs in cold storage via the water-glass route.

Keep the baby chicks hungry at all times. Never feed too much.

Pinches of sodium fluoride in the feathers will rid a hen of lice.

Scatter air slaked lime freely about the houses and yards; it will go a long way towards preventing disease.

Alfalfa meal and wheat bran are, perhaps, the most common "bases" for chick growing mash and they are hard to excel.

Alfalfa meal should be in all mash rations and it will pay to encourage the chicks or fowls to eat as much of it as possible. It makes for greater capacity.

Don't sell the hens because the price of eggs is low and prices for the hens high. Keep plenty of hens to lay eggs for home use and to sell next winter when prices are up.

Anti-Fat Campaign in 1863.
The fattest man of all history is a title that has rested undisputed on Daniel Lambert, who died in his fortieth year at Stamford, Eng., in 1809. Mr. Lambert is said to have weighed 730 pounds, almost 200 pounds more than his closest competitor, Mr.
Bright, who lived in Essex in the previous century. Bright, however, was scarcely a slyph, for his waistcoat is reputed to have enclosed seven persons of ordinary size, with room to spare. One of the first recorded anti-fat campaigns was that inaugurated by William Banting, who published a pamphlet on the subject in 1863. He urged as a cure greater moderation in the eating of sugar and starch, and gained so much fame that today
"banting" is common vernacular for undertaking a restrictive diet.

Irish Games Are Old

Ireland is the only country in the world except France that has a minister of sports. He is J. J. Walsh, who doubles the parts of full minister of sports and postmaster general of the provisional government. His sports job is even bigger than his task of taking over the post office, for it puts on him the responsibility of organizing the great national games to be held in Dublin.

The Irish Gaelic games have a history of many hundred years. Walsh says they are older than the Olympic games in Greece. They ended the year before the first British soldiers came to Ireland in the Twelfth century and their resumption is organized for the date when the last British soldier will have left it.

BRITISH FORCES GET READY TO PLAY GOLF

Leitch Sisters and Joyce Wethered Coming for Women's Championships and Four of Foremost Professionals Expected.

American courses are to bear the brunt of international competition this summer, for starting late in June, the invasion of the best British talent in women's amateur and professional ranks will begin. The Leitch sisters and Miss Joyce Wethered are coming for the women's championships, and four of the land's foremost professionals, George Duncan, Abe Mitchell, Alex Hurd and J. B. Taylor, will be here for the open championship and a tour of the country afterward. The amateurs probably will not arrive until later in the season, only a short time before the national championship at Brookline September 4-9.

Although American amateurs will compete for the English title, the international situation is much the reverse of last year's when America was represented heavily in English tournament play by both amateurs and professionals. Writes Rockwell R. Stephens in the Chicago News, Jesse Guilford, the American amateur champion, all winter has been slated to go across and as no contrary word has come is considered to be a sure competitor at Prestwick.

For a time reports were persistent that Francis Ommet would go over with Guilford, but the 1914 champion has recently denied that he has any intention of going. At the time he made the statement that he would not compete in England he also had something to say about the English system of playing matches at 18 holes, which he declared was unfair and no test of real golf ability. He compared the 18-hole match to asking Jole Ray to get up speed in a quarter-mile race.

MARANVILLE HAS BIG HANDS

Pittsburgh Shortstop Enabled to Make Plays That Other Fielders Find Impossible.

Certain players cannot make certain plays that other players make. Plays depend upon the physical abilities of the players.

Cavenay, now with the Cincinnati Nationals, has extremely long arms. He has large hands. He can reach far. It is possible for Cavenay to take throws on either side that would get by any other infielder, not because he is better but because he can reach further.

"Rabbit" Maranville, one of the greatest shortstops in years, is under the size called medium, but he has enormous hands. Maranville's massive hands enabled him to make many plays that other shortstops found impossible.

Herman Pillette has unusually long fingers. The length of Pillette's fingers enables him to get a grip on the ball that produces the "screw" delivery, a variety of curve ball that few pitchers are able to throw. Pillette's success with the delivery is due to the length of his fingers.

"Bever Days."

"Bever" is a drink between meals. At Eton college, England, they formerly had "bever days," when extra beer and bread were served during the afternoon in the college hall to students and any friends whom they had invited.

No Hold-Out Players

The only baseball league in the world in which there are no holdouts and no chances for holdouts is the San Quentin Prison league. The league is distinguished for several reasons, as has been remarked, and the managers have a soft time signing up their talent. In the opening games of the season the Seals play the Oaks and the Tigers entertain the Cubs.

RAFAEL ALMEIDA WAS VERY TEMPERAMENTAL

Only Ball Player to Carry Valet
Around With Him.

Insisted That He Could Not Be Expected to Play His Best Game Without His Favorite Cigars
—Made O'Day Roar.

In 1912 Hank O'Day was manager of the Cincinnati Reds and he had for his third baseman that temperamental Latin, Rafael Almeida. Senior Almeida was the only ball player in the National league who carried a valet around with him and insisted on having his morning coffee in bed. Managers in these days may rave over the mercenary dispositions of their hired men but they can truthfully say that not one of them possesses the prima donna temperament of Senior Almeida.

One day—and Cincinnati was leading the race on that particular one—the Reds came piling into the station on their way to a series in St. Louis. Almeida strolled leisurely in behind them. He opened a gold cigar case. "A million thanks," he exclaimed, "My favorite cigars." Of them I have none left. I must buy them here, for in St. Louis they do not keep that brand.

"You ain't got time," protested one of his teammates.

Rafael shrugged his shoulders and walked away twirling his bamboo cane and did not show up at the Planters hotel in St. Louis until two days later.

Hankins Pankus O'Day went into action like a Limerick volcano. He requested to know where the hinges of hades Almeida had been. Cincinnati had lost a ball game that afternoon because a substitute third baseman had booted away an easy chance so Mr. O'Day spoke freely and with little restraint.

Rafael shrugged his shoulders and palms. "I had no cigars," he explained patiently. "You cannot expect a man to play his best when he has not his favorites to smoke?"

"Expect?" roared Hank. "I don't expect nothing of you. I've sold you to Birmingham in the Southern league."

"Very well, Monster O'Day," rejoined Rafael.

EXPLANATION OF GOLF SWING

Bob McDonald, Professional at Bob

Suggestion.

"The golf swing should not be modeled on hitting in baseball, but on throwing," says Bob McDonald pro at the Bob o' Links course in Chicago. "where there is the same turn of the body and the same snap of the wrist. Men through generations have been taught how to throw, where women haven't. So the male of the species has this advantage, to say nothing of greater physical power."

Yet some infielders and a few outfielders at critical times, by their heaves into the stands and far from the spot aimed at indicate that their throwing education is imperfect.

What Water Does for Batteries

Not too much or too little—but just the right quantity of water ought to be kept in your battery all the time.

The water does two things: it keeps the battery solution over the tops of the plates so that the whole plate surface is used; and it gives proper strength of solution.

APPEAL MADE FOR BOY SCOUTS
(Contributed)

The Boy Scout program was worked out by the best experts, the strongest leaders of boy activities of our country and what is recognized as the best program yet devised for adolescent boys was the result.

More than 2,000,000 boys have been numbered among its members during the past twelve years. Its success can be attributed in no small way to its volunteer leadership, 125,000 men now serving as Scoutmasters, troop committeemen and members of National and local Councils. Among them may be found the leaders in the social, political, religious, educational and business life of our country.

Scouting appeals to our very best men and it may be termed a Movement of Volunteers for in the professional ranks are found but 120 men. From an economic standpoint Scouting is recognized as occupying a most important place in the life of a community. No community can afford to do less than the best to make the scout program available to the greatest possible numbers of its boys. Every community is responsible for its youth, and men of vision are thinking in terms of 10 years hence when the boys of today shall be men who will be the leaders in the activities of their communities.

Scouting has well been termed the fence at the top of the cliff which has prevented many a boy from going over to destruction or to be cared for at great expense through the maintenance of an ambulance and hospital in the valley.

The services of a full-time Scout Executive are required. He is held responsible for carrying out the policies of the council. Under his leadership the whole organization is coordinated. The volunteer members of the council are instructed in the work of their positions, thus Scouting becomes most efficient.

Every person in Kingston should have an interest in the work which is being conducted to secure funds for the support of the Boy Scout Movement in our city for the next twelve months.

The question comes squarely up to every resident of the city. "What am I doing to conserve the best of my home?" Ask yourself that question and then when you have seen and heard what Scouting is doing for young America all over this broad land, give just as generously as you means will permit.

What will Kingston give in exchange for her boys? The boys are the city's greatest products. If the men of the local council raise the funds to put scouting on a bigger and better footing than ever before you who have passed beyond the childhood days and looking back know the needs of young men growing into man's estate you know the pitfalls awaiting them and how hard it is for some to avoid danger by themselves. A Boy Scout is a man's boy through and through and there is nothing asinine in his make-up. Give him a chance by giving him your support, not only with money, but with moral support which is so necessary. America needs men who know the code of honor and loyalty as taught the Boy Scout.

THE OFFICE CAT

As a rule, man's a fool.
When it's hot, wants it cool.
When it's cool, wants it hot.
Always grumbling at his lot.
Be it hot, or be it cool,
As a rule, man's a fool.

Yesterday was Great;
Today is Greater;
Tomorrow will be Best.

A genius is a man who can do almost anything but make a living.

"Well, anyhow?"
"Well, anyhow what?"
"The mosquito hasn't kicked about the modern fashions."

Perhaps the railroads could make a little money, even at reduced rates, if the public didn't put them to so much expense picking fliver fragments out of the locomotive running gear.

Take Notice.

Some chaps go whizzing along the street.
With noisy cut-outs snorting.
And running here and there.
Like some mad bull covering.
It seems they cannot learn to know,
How sensible people feel,
That the bigger the noise at the muffler,
The bigger fool at the wheel.

Inspiration is often the beginning and desperation the finish.

Who remembers the good old days when we used to consider it a pleasant privilege to do some little favor for our neighbors?

Maybe No—Maybe Yes.

Newwed—"Oh, no, I guess not. I don't think she's going to be dangerous."

WATER POWER A BIG COAL Saver IN NEW YORK

If all the electricity used in New York state were generated by the use of coal, there would be burned in the Empire State at least 12,500 tons of that fuel each day in excess of the present rate of consumption. "White coal"—that is, hydro-electric energy—is saving for the people of this state $62,500 a day, figuring coal at $5 a ton, which is considerably cheaper than the price many public utility companies have been paying for their supply during the coal strike.

The electric light and power companies of the state outside of New York city, generate about 2,900,000 kilowatt hours of electricity a year, of which only 400,000,000 kilowatt hours is made by steam plants in New York city. The production of electricity amounts to some 2,600,000,000 kilowatt hours a year, all of which is produced by steam plants, which, however, are so economically operated that they require an average of only 2 1/2 pounds of coal to generate one kilowatt hour of electricity. It will not be many years before the completion of power development projects in the Adirondacks, and on the St. Lawrence and Hudson rivers will make possible the delivery of hydro-electric energy to New York city, though it is doubtful if this hydro-electric energy could be sold cheaper than electricity now produced in the metropolitan steam plants, because of their economical operation and high efficiency.

Figures just compiled by the Empire State Gas and Electric Association show that the public service companies operating in New York State burn on the lowest estimate, 35,000 tons of coal a day. This is apportioned as follows:

LEONARD HOLDS THE CHAMPIONSHIP

Beaten Until the Ninth, He Comes Back in the Last Four and Out-Scores Tender in Liveliest Fight Seen in Years.

By Telegraph to the Freeman.

New York, July 28.—In a roaring, two-fisted bout that filled the eye and gladdened the heart, Benny Leonard not only managed to preserve his lightweight title intact by avoiding a knockout but out-scored Lew Tندر, the challenger, last night at Boyle's Thirty Acres after twelve of the most sensational rounds a championship engagement has known in many years.

A beaten man until the ninth round, with his championship crown hanging at a most surprising and rakish angle, Leonard came back like a bad check in the last four to nip Tندر's lead right at the wire. In the final round he was shooting lefts and rights into Tندر's anatomy almost at will and there seemed no reasonable doubt about the fact that, if the bout had gone a few rounds further Leonard would have been a very comfortable winner.

As it was his wide margin of superiority was sufficient to convince the majority of critics and spectators at the ringside.

He was by no means a debonair winner, however. Over his right eye was the red smear of a cut, the memento of Tندر's arching left to the head in the first round while the usual even line of his smile was broken by a gaping hole where a disenchanted tooth had been knocked loose from his home. So much for his physical casualties.

As for his mental poise, this was somewhat shaken by the memory of a hectic eighth round in which he was forced to summon all of his ring craft to stare off an impending knockout. A left hook to the jaw in this round caused Leonard's knees to buckle and his eyes to glaze, momentarily, and Tندر, scenting immediate victory, swarmed over the champion like a boarding party of pirates. But his judgment of distance was faulty and his big moment passed almost before he had time to recognize it.

There were no knockdowns, largely because one man was so clever and the other so tough. Tندر demonstrated last night that India rubber is a light fluffy substance compared with some human chins. He forced the fighting from first to last and seemed satisfied to take two punches and land one. That was where Leonard out-scored him, even if he didn't actually hurt him at any time.

And Leonard was shooting to the "button" like a sharpshooter after the fifth round. Time after time Tندر was brought up short with terrific right uppercuts and left hooks but he shook them off, imperturbably and came on again without obvious distress. Leonard was made to look foolish with his pre-battle claims of an early knockout because of what he termed the challenger's lack of class.

The latter lacked class so evidently that he was within two good punches of scoring a knockout in the eighth.

The writer's tally of the rounds gave Tندر four rounds, the first, second, fourth and eighth; Leonard five, the sixth, seventh, tenth, eleventh and twelfth, and the rest even.

The ease with which Tندر went to the pace in the early rounds caused much astonishment and discomfiture to those who had sent in their money on the champion. It looked in the first two rounds, when Tندر was hooking his left to Leonard's head almost without return, as though Benny would not remain for the evening.

With the fourth, however, Leonard began to use a right uppercut with telling effect and in the sixth the challenger was just a big goofy from these punches.

Until that moment Tندر had carried the fighting to his man with a singular lack of the body punching attack he was supposed to launch from the first bell. It was apparent that a switch in his plans had been made, at least for the first few rounds. And when he did begin to bring his punches down, along about the fourth round, he found Leonard to be a veritable network of gloves and elbows. In brief, Tندر made a remarkable stand in spite of the collapse of his favorite mode of attack.

Aside from the eighth and ninth the last six rounds were all Leonard's. He had fought off the spell of that awkward left hand stance.

"It took me eight rounds to get wise to that bird," he shouted to friends as he left the ring.

That just about covers the situation. Certainly no one, however prejudiced, can take issue with the fact that Leonard made Tندر look very bad in the last three rounds.

There was much of the theatrical about the attitude of this pair. They exchanged pleasantries with various punches and Leonard continually protested to Referee Erie that he was being fouled, a claim that brought warnings from the official several times. There was no mistaking their hostility for each other.

The enterprise drew a crowd of 70,000 and the receipts mounted well above the $450,000 mark. Of this sum Leonard will probably draw down about $115,000 and Tندر close to $30,000.

The writer knows a lot of citizens who would argue it out with the cowcatcher of the Twentieth Century Limited for money like that.
